"Policies and Standards for Information Security" book launch!

On August 22, the Cultura bookstore in Villa Lobos shopping mall, in Sao Paulo city, received Edison Fontes for the launching of his new book "Policies and Standards for Information Security". This work fills a gap in the literature with a practical and theoretical approach, which aims to facilitate the development, implementation and maintenance of policies and standards for information security, presents theoretical issues that must be considered by professionals involved in the development of security regulations and also provides thirty real examples of policies, standards and documentation. The book was written to be useful for those involved with information security and also can be used in by students and teachers in security courses and professionals in the areas of audit, control, risk management and other stakeholders on the subject. The Nucleo family congratulates its partner Edison Fontes for his latest accomplishment.

Harold Jones (Ed Harris) is the local football coach who is involved in the preparation of the team and rarely spends time with his family.
