Seminar at FIESP debates frauds on industry

The Industry Federation of Sao Paulo state (FIESP) held on October 31 at its headquarters in Sao Paulo city, the Fraud Seminar in Industry with the objective to present concepts, threats and strategies to prevent frauds committed against the industry and its financial components and payments. The event was coordinated by the FIESP Security department (DESEG) directors, Ricardo Coelho and Fernando So, which emphasized the mission of DESEG to act in favor of improving private and public security in Sao Paulo state. The Getulio Vargas Foundation (FGV) consultant, Joao Peres, spoke about the risks and corporate fraud and stated that every fraud is linked to a corruption case. According to a KPMG research presented by the consultant, the financial loss of Brazilian and American companies with fraud represents 5% of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) of the respective countries. "Additionally, 74% of the Latin American companies stated being harmed by frauds. Corruption and bribery represents 79% of this index". Nucleo team attended the event and takes the opportunity to congratulate the organizers and emphasize the presence of high level experts, who pointed out the main causes and ways to prevent the problem. Commented Synopsis: For 11 and half years, Margaret Thatcher (Meryl Streep) remained in the position of British Prime Minister. She broke barriers of gender and class, making a world dominated by men stop to hear what she had to say, initially with a shrill voice, but always with great vigor, conviction and certainty. During this period, she led England with an iron hand and faced a number of important decisions. Margaret was never ashamed of her origins and always preferred political debates over the delegated tasks for women. Aiming to walk her own path and make a difference in the world, she decided to start her career in this male universe, always with the support of her husband, Denis Thatcher (Jim Broadbent). "The movie is a biography, reviewed through flashbacks, and is a story full of controversial incidents that divides opinions in the whole world". Marcela Floriano
